INTRODUCTION.

T was the Appointment of God, in consequence of the First Transgression, that in * Sorrow Woman should bring forth Children. Accordingly, Terrors, Pains, and Dangers are the inseparable Attendants of Labor. A Child is not born into the World, but at the Hazard of that very Life, to which, under God, it is indebted for its own.

Such being the Lot of Childbearing; not to shew the utmost Compassion, not to administer proper Relief, to Women under these Circumstances must argue a most unfeeling Disposition. To be capable of it, we must resist the generous Propenfity of our Nature, which feems particularly inclined to Emotions of Tenderness for Persons in that distressful and dangerous Situation. And who can fay, whether God (who in the midst of Judgment thinketh upon Mercy) did not, at the very Time that he decreed Woman to * multiply her Sorrow and her Conception, defign, in order to mitigate that Sorrow, to impress upon the human Heart a strong Commiseration of her sad Condition. But, without attempting nicely to account for that particular Regard, which is usually shewn to Women in Labor, it is certainly well founded, does Honor to our Species, and ought to be carefully cherished and indulged.

For these Reasons, and with these Views, THIS CHARITY was first instituted, and now solicits the Countenance and Beneficence of the Public. The Objects of it are the Poor—the sober and industrious Poor—in One of the most perilous Circum—* Genesis iii. 16.

stances of human Life-Poor Married Women, destitute of Help in Time of Labor. The Contributors to this Charity will foothe the Anguish of many a tender Husband, by relieving the Wife of his Bosom in her Extremity, will alleviate the agonizing Pains, prevent the Sickness and Death, of many a valuable Woman, preserve the Life of many an helpless Infant. Surely, a Design conceived for fuch amiable Purpofes as these, can never want Encouragement, while Sentiments of Tenderness are suffered to animate and influence the human Heart.

OF THE NATURE and ADVANTAGES.

THIS CHARITY.

To the fingular Honor of this Age and Nation many and very expensive Designs, calculated for the excellent Purpose of relieving the Afflicted, have been generously set on foot, and supported by the prevaling Spirit of public Benevolence. Among the loud Cries of various Distress, which have reached the Ears of the Compassionate, Attention has been given to the Voice of indigent Women laboring with Child. The Extremity of their Situation has

has been generally acknowledged, and feveral Expedients have been proposed for their Assistance. Hospitals have been opened to receive them in common with the Sick; nay, Hospitals have been built and maintained intirely for their Benefit. With a View singly to this Species of Distress was instituted, in the YEAR 1757, THE CHARITY FOR DELIVERING POOR MARRIED WOMEN AT THEIR OWN HABITATIONS.

A Concurrence of Causes operated in Favor of this Design. The humane and public-spirited Gentlemen, who were first concerned in it, having a just Sense of the distressful Situation of very poor Women in the Time of Travail, were desirous of relieving them in a Way more convenient and effectual, than any hitherto adopted by the Public. They saw with Concern, that only a small Part of that great Multitude, which wanted Help in this large City, could possibly have it by the Means of Hospitals; and that, with respect to these Hospitals, the taking Women in Lahor from their Husbands and Families was liable to firong Objections—was inconvenient to the Patients themselves -difagreeable and hurtful to many poor married People -- and withal very expensive to the Public. They therefore agreed in a new Scheme for relieving the Distress in question—clear of the above Objections. At the same Time they had the Pleasure of perceiving, that their new Defign would, incidentally, be productive of general Good, by increasing the Number of skilful and honest Midwives; who, instructed in their Art at the Charge of this Charity, and placed in various Parts of the Town, would be ready to administer their Aid to any Persons that might want it.

Whether this Design is well adapted to these several Purposes, is here submitted to the Consideration of the Public.

I. This Charity comprehends a much greater Number of Women, than any other instituted for the same general Purpose of helping indigent Women in their Lyings-in. The Sum expended by this Society in the Course of the last Year was One thousand One hundred Seventy-three Pounds and upwards, which Sum was found fufficient to relieve Four thousand One hundred and one Women. How impracticable were the Attempt to erect and endow Hospitals for fuch a Multitude? And yet a much larger Number would rejoice to partake of this Charity. In proportion to its having been more known, it has increased in the Favor of the Public. Honoured with the Patronage of his Royal Highness the Prince of WALES, it aspires to universal Notice and Should the Subscriptions still greatly increase, to how large a Circle of poor People may it communicate Affistance; and, with the Bleffing of Providence, how many Lives of Women and Children may it preserve!

It has been objected to this Charity, that the Affistance it affords at present is too flender; that the supplying the Poor with Midwives and Medicines is but a small and ineffectual Relief. But, let it be duly weighed, that if the Affistance were greater, only few Persons in comparison could be benefited. And it will hardly be denied, but that it is better to impart even a scanty Supply to MANY, in equal Want, than a larger one to FEW, in Exclusion of the Rest. Those, who have had the Welfare of this Charity most at Heart, and labored indefatigably in its Service, have earnestly wished to enlarge the Allowance; but the Subscriptions have hitherto been too small to admit of it, without breaking in upon an essential Part of the original Plan, the affording Help to a large Number. Whenever the Subscriptions will permit, the Governors will be glad, confistently with this Principle, to extend the Aid as far as the most Generous and Compassionate can desire.

But after all, is the present Help so very inconfiderable as is prefumed? In all common Cases, the Patients are supplied with honest, skilful, and humane Midwives, and with necessary Medicines: in all difficult or dangerous Cases they are attended by Two able and approved Physicians and Menmidwives; who are to deliver them if neceffary, to prescribe for them, and to visit them regularly, both before and after Delivery, till they are perfectly recovered; and in extraordinary Cases a confulting Physician and Man-midwife, whose Abilities this Charity has long experienced, is engaged to give his additional Advice and Affistance. It cannot be denied, but that the Provision, which is hereby made for Emergencies, is very valuable; and in ordinary Cases, the Relief is of considerable Service. Men of very low Condition can hardly purchase the Necessaries of Life; and if they have a family of Children, or a fickly Wife, it will be found very difficult for them (who, besides, are very rarely Patterns Patterns of Oeconomy) to defray the Charges of a common Lying-in: Those, who are most experienced in this Matter, well know the Hardships Women undergo, the long, dangerous, and, frequently fatal Illnesses they contract from the Want of able Midwives and proper Medicines. So trisling as some may think the Help afforded by this Charity, the Pains with which the Poor solicit it, the Joy they discover upon receiving it, and the Gratitude they demonstrate afterwards, are incontestable Proofs of the Value they set upon it; and they should be no incompetent Judges of its Merit.

It has been further suggested to the Disparagement of this Charity, that Women in their Lyings-in stand but in little Need of Medicines, and that when Medicines are absolutely requisite, they can be procured at a very small Expence.

But are these Affertions agreeable to Truth? Women in general want Medicines at those Times; and the Poor, who have only very coarse and indifferent Food, and nothing to supply the Place of Medicines, have more particular Occasion for them. The very indigent, who cannot purchase them, must do without them: But they too frequently feel the fad Confequences of it in their future Health. Neither is their Cost inconsiderable; as may appear from the Expence incurred by this Charity upon account of Drugs only, though purchased at a much cheaper Rate than they can possible be by the Poor, and dispensed with the strictest Frugality.

II. The Circumstance of relieving the Women at their own Habitations has a striking Propriety in it.

Whatever Sentiments some Persons are induced to entertain of poor Married People;

People; many of them have as strong Attachments to each other, as those who have been educated in higher Life, and with greater Advantages: They will do as much, fuffer as much, and deny themselves as much for each other, as People of fuperior Condition. This is undoubtedly true with respect to many a poor Couple. And how grievous will a Separation be to fuch Persons? Forced by extreme Want to submit to it, that the Wife may have the Affistance of an Hospital in her Lying-in, with what Regret will they be divided? what heart-rending Anguish will overwhelm them when they are taking a folemn, and perhaps a last Farewell of each other? Let any affectionate Pair, of whatfoever Rank or Condition, fay, whether they would not think, if the Case was their own, fuch Separation most painful and afflictive, and be induced to undergo almost any Inconvenience, rather than confent to it. And fuch has actually been the Refor

Resolution of many poor Women: They have refused the Succour of an Hospital upon account of this cruel and insupportable Separation; they have chose rather to incur any Expence, endure any Hardships. run any Risks of Life and Health, than, at so alarming a Time, be torn from their Husbands and Homes. And though the Pleas of Affection are in many Instances over-ruled by the stronger Pleas of Necesfity, and, in consequence, a Separation is complied with; yet the Anxiety usually fuffered, both by the Husband and Wife, in fuch Cases, is so great, as of itself to create an infurmountable Objection to this Method of Relief.

The Wife being a Mother, the Impropriety of removing her to an Hospital is still more apparent. Not to insist on the Sorrow which a tender Mother will feel upon being taken from her little Ones, at a Time when her Spirits are low, her Health

Health impaired, and her Heart more . ftrongly attached to her domestic Connexions, than at any other; what must be the Consequence of it with respect to the Children? While the Wife continues at Home, the Husband may pursue his Business Abroad. Her Presence, with all the Disadvantages of her Situation, will yet be of very beneficial Influence to her Family. Though able to do little or nothing herfelf, she may give Directions to a Child or a Nurse concerning the most material Affairs: She may be up, and able to do many Things for her Children, long before the Customary Time of discharging Women from the Lying-in Hospitals. No one need be reminded of the Importance of a Mother's Residence in a poor Man's Family, with regard to the Safety, Cleanliness, Behaviour, and Happiness of the Children. If she be removed, the Husband must forego the Profits of his constant Labor to supply her Place at Home; or, if extreme Penury makes that impracticable, he must be at the Charge of hiring some Person to look after his deserted Children; or, his Circumstances not allowing him to do even that, the helpless Infants must be left for the most Part intirely to themselves.

There is one Thing more not to be omitted in this Place. By delivering Women at their own Houses, the mutual Regard of Husband and Wife is better confulted, than by any Method which requires a Separation. To Perfons closely connected by the Ties of Habit, Affection, and Interest, Intervals of Danger to either Party are found to support and strengthen reciprocal Love. They improve the tender Passions, give them Room to exert and display themselves more freely, than they are wont to do in Seasons of Security and more general Intercourse. The Bleffings of the matrimonial Union will be more fenfibly felt under the quick and fearful Apprehension of its Dissolution: The Esteem and Kindness, which before seemed to be languid and expiring, then revives and kindles afresh with all the Warmth and Strength of the most paossinate Endearment. It is therefore another Objection to the Mode of Relief by Hospitals, that the Separation of Husband and Wife intercepts these fair Occasions of testifying and confirming their mutual Affection.

III. The industrious Poor are the Support of a Community; consequently, every Expedient that tends to the Preservation of their Lives and Healths is of general Utility. This Charity is particularly subservient to this End. By helping to supply the necessitous Women of this Metropolis with cheap and experienced Midwives (the Want of which has been much lamented) it will prevent the Sickness and Death of many Women, and save the Lives of many Infants. The Public is intreated to attend to the special Advantages which will hence accrue to Society.

The Midwives are fettled in various Parts of London, Westminster, and Southwark, and are in the Way to attend any Lying-in Women in their respective Neighbourhoods. They have been carefully instructed in their Art by the Consulting Physician at the fole Charge of this Charity; and are not employed by the Society until the Physician has made report to the Committee of their being duly qualified for the Office. On account of future Benefit to themselves they stand engaged to serve this Charity at a low Price for Two Years. Great Care is taken to know the Characters of Women recommended for this Trust, and that Care has hitherto fo well fucceeded, that few Complaints have been made at all, very few justly made, of their Want of Punctuality or good Behaviour. And any Failure of Duty could hardly have escaped the Knowledge of the Governors, who strictly watch, and take every Precaution to be well informed of, the Conduct of the Midwives.

This ACCOUNT, it is hoped, will fufficiently explain the Advantages of this Charity, obviate any Objections to it, give the Candid and Confiderate a just and favorable Idea of it, and engage the Benevolent and Liberal in its Welfare and Support.
